Blaze destroys farm equipment business

BY CHRIS BROOKE

Wind gusts propelled flames, dense black smoke and intense heat through Robinson's Farm Equipment in Eminence and threatened several nearby homes on South Main during the March 31 blaze.

Fanned by the winds and fueled by the contents at Robinson's, the blaze consumed the structure in about an hour after the 12:20 p.m. alarm went out to Henry County fire and emergency personnel.

Two people inside the store during lunchtime noticed the smoke and fled.

Robinson's Farm Equipment has long been a member of the Eminence community, starting out as an Oliver Farm Equipment more than 40 years ago and becoming a Massey Ferguson dealership 20 years ago, according to its website.

Volunteers arriving on the scene took up positions around the front and sides of Robinson's to battle the blaze from a safe distance as choking smoke blew to the east. Observers in New Castle could easily see the rising column.

Firefighters from New Castle, Pleasureville, Lake Jericho, Campbellsburg as well as Shelby County and Ballardsville, moved to contain the blaze by aiming several hoses and water cannons from three sides, Eminence Fire Chief Gary Lucas said. Volunteers probably used about 5,000 gallons per minute at times.

Volunteers kept the flames from spreading to the Turner home next door by turning their hoses on it and spraying it down as the heat from the fire built up and melted the siding.

Emergency responders also had to put out several grass fires in the area sparked by the many burning embers.

Hemp food project puts down roots

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

Having secured an option on eight acres in the Henry County Commerce Park for a hemp food products processing facility, entrepreneur Chad Rosen will turn his attention to raising capital for the project estimated at more than $4 million.

Rosen met members of the Henry County Fiscal Court's Economic Development Committee April 2 to sign the paperwork and pay the $4,000 for the option. The agreed to purchase price is $5,000 an acre.

Rosen, who recently leased an apartment in New Castle, found about 20 potential sites across Kentucky suitable for the hemp processing facility idea. He had interest from big tobacco processors in Lexington who are looking to make a transition to hemp, but in the end he felt most welcomed by Henry County.

His first point of contact was Tommy Tingle, the real estate agent who helped pursue potential sites. "I told him about the project, and he said, 'You should talk to our judge, John Logan Brent — he's a neighbor and a friend. He might be interested. He's a farmer, and he might have an open ear.'" Rosen recalled.

He followed that tip, and it led to meetings with state representatives and senators about the project, as well as an opportunity to work with the Berry Center.

"It's unlocked all sorts of doors that I wouldn't have been able to walk through without having the support I did here in Henry County," he said.

Rosen has a history in developing sustainable products. He started a California company called Vetrazzo that recycled glass. That process reused glass as a base for polished cement — an alternative to natural stone. When that company was bought out, he moved to Atlanta to continue to oversee the processing.

His latest idea involves processing hemp into food products like flour and oil, Rosen said. Hemp oil is good for salad dressings and pesto and pasta dishes.

One thing that makes hemp a good substitute for traditional foods arise

Eastern Elementary School students fight cancer during 'Relay Recess'

BY CHRIS BROOKE
editor@hclocal.com

The halls of Eastern Elementary School rang with cheers for cancer survivors April 3 as students contributed to the fight against the disease with a Relay Recess.

Students looked happy to be doing their part through the Relay for Life event, even though drenching rains kept the walkers inside.

Beginning with a school-wide assembly in the cafeteria, teacher Diane Dunavan shared her experience in surviving cancer.

Her diagnosis came about four years ago when she went to the doctor for a checkup. Dunavan said she didn't worry, but instead pledged to beat the disease.

To do that, she needed surgery followed by chemotherapy.

"They were trying to heal me with chemicals, just to make sure there was no cancer floating around in the rest of my body," she said.

With all the chemo treatments, tests and blood work, Dunavan felt like a human pin-cushion. Her treatment schedule from December to May allowed her to teach for 12 or 14 days, then go to her chemo appointment. Doctors required her to rest another week before returning to school.

She didn't like the radiation treatments, aimed specifically where the mass was found. The high-powered machine once gave her a burn, but, in the end, the treatment regimen worked.

"I'm glad to say I don't have cancer now," Dunavan said.

One thing that made her feel special was the cards and letters of support she got from the community while undergoing her treatments.

Dunavan also expressed her appreciation that the students keep getting involved in Relay for Life activities. The funds the students raised help to develop medicines like Tomoxifen to treat cancer.

"I'm thankful for all your donations," she said. "The money helps to support research to find a cure for cancer."

Kelsey Lewis, community manager for Relay for Life, shared a number of ways that the children can use to stay healthy and avoid cancer, such as eating healthy foods, like apples; using sunscreen to protect against skin cancer; and staying active by playing outside.

Lung cancer is one of the easiest diseases to avoid — students do that by simply never taking up smoking, Lewis said.

Dunavan and the students honored several cancer survivors who had come out to participate in the Relay Recess, including Gary Silvers, Betty Brewer, Jo Brewer, Polly Troxell and Mark Fassio.

The students gave each survivor a certificate of appre-

Top, the fire quickly spread from the back of Robinson's Farm Equipment and engulfed the whole business. Above, a couple of the first firefighters on scene take up a position to contain the blaze. At right, business owner Harrison Robinson talks with a Henry County EMS member while the work to contain the fire and its fallout continued.

"I knew getting on the scene with the intensity of the fire, there was no way we were going to be able to stop it — it was just too far gone," Eminence Fire Chief Gary Lucas said. "I said, we've got to protect the [nearby homes] — just contain it as much as we could, get it controlled where it was at."

The cause is not yet known, but all signs point to an accidental fire, Lucas said.

The blaze began in the northwest corner and gusting winds funneled the flames, towards Main Street, causing many flammable products inside to blow up as the fire progressed.

"It's the nature of the beast, being there were six tractors in there being worked on, fuel and tires, hydraulic fluids, oils," Lucas said.

With so many flammables feeding the fire, even the smoke would burn, he added.

The intense heat melted the Massey-Ferguson sign and the utility lines overhead, burned the transformer and caused a utility pole to burn almost in half, he said.

Emergency responders moved a fire truck out of the way of the power lines.

"If those things had dropped, those things are 7,200 volts," Lucas said. "You have to be concerned with that, keep everyone at a safe distance, keep the people back."

Crews also had to shut off the natural gas service.

"When the gas meter exploded over on the north side next to the Turner house that blew out, and it was blowing a lot of flame, too. It was blue green," Lucas said. "It was kind of like a torch once it exploded."

Besides the many grass fires, the embers also caught the home of Judy Rice across South Main.

"The embers found their way into a crevice and got into the walls," Lucas said. "We were very fortunate to get on to that one as quick as we got in there with four teams."

The residential fire damaged an upstairs bedroom and got into the walls, he said. Volunteers used their thermal imaging camera to find hotspots, and they pulled down some drywall to put them out.

"We don't call Red Cross in on a business fire, typically, but anytime there's a residential homeowner is displaced, we call them, and they come in and they'll work with the family," Lucas said.

Firefighters also entered a third home that's for sale to check it to be safe, but as it turned out the fire had not spread there.

While the siding on the Turner home looks bad, Lucas didn't think there was structural damage there.

The one person transported to the hospital was a neighboring homeowner who got overwhelmed by the stress of the emergency, but other than that, Lucas said no injuries were reported from this fire.

The fire department had assistance from Eminence Police Department and the Henry County Sheriff's Office and several members of the Henry County EMS were on scene.

"As bad as it was, it had the potential to be a whole lot worse," Lucas said.

FIRE DESTROYS BERT’S GARAGE APRIL 1

SUBMITTED

Several fire departments responded to a report of a blaze at Bert’s Garage at 2383 Mount Olivet Road, Pendleton, April 1. Between 30 and 40 volunteers from Lake Jericho, New Castle, Eminence, Campbellsburg, LaGrange and Ballardsville spent several hours on scene after the fire was discovered before 7 a.m. Lake Jericho fire Chief Ed Whitaker said volunteers took precautions while on scene, because of the danger posed by the building collapsing. The cause of the fire was not immediately known, and personnel from the Kentucky State Police and the state fire marshal’s office responded to investigate.

ciation, celebrating that they had won their struggle with cancer.

Because they were the top fundraisers leading up to the event, students Kayleigh Tallent, Marley Cobb and Andrew Poling, carried the Relay banner down the hall. As the survivors walked their survivor lap, the children and teachers who lined the hall-ways cheered them on.

“I don’t think cancer could ever win with all that,” Betty Brewer said after the survivor lap. “I had one little guy saying, ‘Beat cancer! Beat cancer! Beat cancer!’”

With donations still coming in after the event, Dunavan said she believed Eastern achieved its goal of raising $1,000 during the Relay Recess. The two top student fundraisers were Kayleigh Tallent with $190 in the third through the fifth grades and Sophie Drawbaugh with $139 in kindergarten through sec-ond.

from its being high in Omega 3s, which often comes from fish oils.

Hemp is also one of the few plant proteins that can provide nine essential amino acids.

He plans to bring samples of these products to Harvest Showcase and he’s got farm-to-table chefs in Louisville work-ing on recipes. Rosen also intends to observe Hemp History Week from June 1 to 7 giving out educational materi-als and samples in front of the Henry County Courthouse.

“Once people start to understand what the nutritional profile of hemp is, it’s going to be one of those products, we hope, that is a staple in their diet,” he said.

Kentucky has a history of raising hemp, and he’s found growing support among politicians in making this state a leader in hemp production again as a way to provide farmers with another crop to turn to as tobac-co declines.

“I’ve always kind of marched to a sustainable drum beat and that really fits in line with what we’re trying to accom-plish here... work with family farms, develop sus-tainable agriculture and economically viable farms to bring farmers back to their land,” Rosen said.

But before this project would seek to buy hemp from local farmers, his business plan calls for partnering with an estab-lished hemp food proces-sor from overseas and importing their brands, he said. This will help Rosen get established in the hemp food market while making prepara-tions to source hemp from local and regional farmers.

If successful, this would make this proj-ect the first hemp food manufacturer in the United States, he said. Right now, the main players in the $600 mil-lion hemp foods North American market are two processors in Canada.

With major retailers like Whole Foods and Kroger making space for hemp foods on their shelves, Rosen believes the demand will be there.

Signing the option agreement is a first step in making this project a reality, Rosen said. Now, he will seek capital to fund the development of a processing facility with a capacity of up to 1,000 tons of grain a year.

If the project moves forward, the processing facility could employ about 15 people.

“It makes a lot of sense for a lot of rea-sons,” Rosen said. “There’s a lot of momentum at the politi-cal level to provide our farmers with another crop that they can profit from.”

With the meat pro-cessing plant locating at the Henry County Commerce Park, the hemp foods processor would be a good fit, Judge-Executive John Logan Brent said. This may attract other com-panies that can add value to locally grown farm products.

While hemp can’t totally replace tobacco, finding new crops to help farmers generate revenue is the way to go. Brent said creating jobs and supporting farmers is a double win.

“Hopefully, that will pave the way for other facilities that would potentially manufacture and enhance the value of local farm products, as well as provide jobs,” he said. “It’s obviously a win anytime you have a facility that’s going to create jobs and then sup-ports our local farmers.”

Legislators came prepared to pass high-profile bills

If it's true that it takes years of preparation to be an overnight success, the same can also be said of many laws approved during a legislative session.

This year is a prime example, with several high-profile measures having been considered by the General Assembly before. That includes those addressing booster seats, dating violence and an update of the state's telecommunications laws.

There are several reasons behind this. A bill may have to wait when competing with other priorities, for example. Often, it takes time for legislators to get comfortable with an idea or for it to gain enough public support. In some cases, what is important in one legislative chamber may not have much traction in the other.

Most agree that this year's "short" session, lasting 29 days out of a possible 30, was a good one for Kentucky. Gov. Beshear said the new laws "will build stronger families and communities and accelerate Kentucky's momentum."

Rick Rand
State Representative

Those bills that did not make it to his desk, however, will almost certainly be filed and debated again when the House and Senate return to the Capitol in January. Some are well known, while others are relatively new.

Two that cleared the House earlier this year with wide, bipartisan margins would have given voters a chance to amend Kentucky's constitution. Under House Bill 1, they would have decided whether Kentucky should join the nearly 40 other states that have a local option sales tax.

If voters approved – polls indicated more than half of Kentuckians support this concept – communities would then be able to vote on whether to add up to a penny more on their local sales tax to pay for projects that could be as large as an arena or as small as a community swimming pool. Once the project is funded, the local levy would no longer be collected.

Since constitutional amendments can only be on the ballot in November of even-numbered years, there is still time for this to pass in 2016. The same goes for another proposed constitutional amendment that has now been through the House 10 times.

House Bill 70 proposed restoring voting rights automatically to most felons after they complete all aspects of their sentence. Nearly all states already allow this, but in Kentucky, only the governor can make this happen. The amendment would benefit about 240,000

Kentuckians, but those convicted of murder, sex-based crimes and bribery in an election would remain ineligible.

One of the most talked-about pieces of legislation toward the end of the session dealt with teacher retirement. House Bill 4 would have taken advantage of extremely low interest rates to borrow several billion dollars that would be used by the Kentucky Teachers' Retirement System, which historically has achieved much higher rates of return on its investments.

While understandably far-reaching, this approach would have eased the system's long-term liability while reducing the likelihood of crippling retirement costs for the state in the 2020s and 2030s. This legislation would have dovetailed with the reforms the General Assembly approved two years ago for state and local government employees and their retirees.

Another bill affecting a substantial number of people would have raised the minimum wage for the first time since 2009. House Bill 2 would have done this in a three-step process by bringing the hourly wage up from the current $7.25 an hour to $10.10 in 2017.

Like the local-option sales tax, this proposal draws a lot of support from Kentuckians, and many other states have already increased theirs above the federal requirement. If we can join them next year, several hundred thousand workers – many who are single parents and/or over 21 – would get a much-needed raise.

Public-private partnerships is another initiative that has broad support among the states. As the P3 name implies, this legislation would have made it easier for the state to partner with private businesses to carry out a public function.

The P3 concept is already taking place within some areas of state government, but this legislation would have standardized that process while expanding it to include highway projects. A key sticking point centers on how to pay for a proposed new bridge in Northern Kentucky, but if that can be resolved, this bill should then have no problem becoming law. It is a top priority of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

There are many other bills that did not pass, of course, but they will get another chance in January. Some that did not even get a committee hearing this year may turn out to play a starring role when 2016's accomplishments are compiled. That becomes even more likely when considering that there will be a new governor and a new two-year budget to enact.

For now, the General Assembly is starting to prepare for what legislators call the interim, which will have the various legislative committees reviewing the issues of the day each month until near the end of the year.

Henry County proclaims April Donate Life Month

With 998 Kentuckians on the waiting list for an organ transplant, there is no better time to join the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry, according to a news release from Circuit Court Clerk Gina Lyle.

Circuit Court Clerks of Kentucky are trying to boost the number of organ donors during April, which is also National Donate Life Month.

In 2014, 103 organ donors in Kentucky were able to save 332 lives, and many more individuals were able to enhance someone's life or give sight through tissue and cornea donation, the news release said. Still more than 124,000 patients are currently waiting for their organ transplant. Each day 21 patients lose their lives while waiting, and Kentucky's Circuit Clerks want to change that.

"When you get your license or state ID, we ask if you would like to donate $1 to increase public education about the mission of organ donation in Kentucky," Lyle said. "We also ask if you wish to be a registered organ donor. Every person who says yes gives hope to all those patients on the waiting list."

2014 was a record year for Kentucky, as 44.5 percent of state citizens donated $1 to the program, the news release said.

"Without the circuit clerks and deputies, we may not have 50,000 names on the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry. Because of their questions at driver's license, over 1.5 million Kentuckians have joined," Shelley Snyder, executive director of the Circuit Clerks' Trust For Life program, said. "Until this mission touches your family, many don't realize how vital it is that everyone joins the registry. If it was my husband or my friend who needed a transplant to live another day, I would want them to have one. That's why I'm a registered donor. If I can save a life when I'm gone, I'm willing to do it."

Henry County Judge-Executive John Logan Brent, with Circuit Court Clerk Gina Lyle and the staff of district and circuit courts offices, signs a proclamation declaring April as National Donate Life Month. Lyle's office is cooperating with other circuit court clerk's offices to boost organ donation sign ups in Kentucky.

For 2015, Lyle's office is reaching out to those in Henry County who have been touched by the mission of organ donation to tell their stories, the news release said. Current stories can be found on the Trust For Life website www.trustforlife.org.

"Many people have been touched by the gift of organ and tissue donation here. By sharing these incredible journeys, we can inspire others to say yes at the driver's license window," Lyle said. "We are such a supportive community. I hope more people will realize the need that is right here in our county. It doesn't cost anything to join the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry. We hope to have over 50 percent of Kentuckians registered by next year."

Also, the court clerk's office would like to honor those who have donated organs or those who have been recipients by hanging their pictures on the wall of the drivers' license office. Those interested should call (502) 845-2868.

"In 2014, Henry County residents donated $2,559 to the Trust For Life, and 515 residents joined the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry. I am proud of the generosity of our community and appreciate your support of this life saving mission," Lyle said. "Currently, 48 percent of Henry County residents are registered donors."

Beginning April 1, Kentucky will have a

Donate Life license plate available for purchase at the county clerk's office.

Throughout April, the Henry County Circuit Clerk's office will celebrate National Donate Life month. Those who donate $1 or join the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry will be entered in an April 30 drawing for door prizes.

A "Recycle Yourself" t-shirt is available for $15. Orders can be placed in the Henry County Drivers' License office until April 13.

On April 28, the court office will have an open house celebration at the courthouse from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

For more information about organ donation, visit the Trust For Life website at www.trustforlife.org or call 1-866-945-5433.

Correction:

An article in the April 1 edition of the newspaper about the Henry County Help Center's award from Dare to Care contained an error. It should have said that Help Center director Joe Durbin did not know that the facility was a finalist for the award.

Eminence pre-school screening and Kindergarten registration set Screenings for Eminence Preschool will be from 4 to 7 p.m., Thursday April 16 and Friday April 17 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Eminence Elementary School.

If your child will be 4 years old by August 1, he or she can be screened for EIS preschool program. Screening is necessary for placement so it is important to bring your child with you.

Three-year-old children with a disability or developmental delay can be screened as well.

Everyone must register their child even if the child has attended a Head Start Program. Head Start Children will not need to be screened, but a registration packet must be completed and required health documents must be submitted before the first day of pre-school.

If your child will be 5 years old by Oct. 1, your child is ready to start Kindergarten. If your child is already attending preschool with Mrs. Coblin, you do not need to register your child; he or she will be automatically enrolled for the 2015-2016 school year.

Please be ready to present the following documents at registration. These documents must be provided in order for your child to register, including birth certificate; Proof of Income, family income is no more than 160 percent above poverty level, pre-school only; valid Kentucky immunization certificate; proof of residency by a driver’s license or bill with a street address.

All students registering for preschool and kindergarten are also required to have the following documents on proper forms before the first day of school: eye exam by a licensed optometrist; physical; dental exam for kindergarten only

Please make appointments and plans for these during the summer, as Eminence Elementary will not allow students to start school without them.

Announcing the 4-H communications event winners

The Henry County 4-H Communications Event was held this past Monday at the extension office. The participants all gave strong speeches and demonstrations. Blake Dockter gave a convincing speech entitled "School Lunches" and how the changes by the Michelle Obama food initiative have not been beneficial to school lunches. He feels that the changes have caused a lot more food to be thrown away because of its lack of flavor. He challenges school administrators to eat lunch in the cafeteria every day in hopes that changes will be made to improve school lunch. Blake received a blue and champion ribbon.

Camryn McManis gave a speech entitled "Everyone Has a Dream" and hers has been to start her own business through the 4-H Means Business Club. Camryn has taken her love of taking pictures and turned it into a note card business. She has learned a lot about marketing, pricing ing and selling over the past year. She received a blue and champion ribbon. Katherine Buckler gave a speech on "Social Media" and how it affects our everyday life. She discussed how it can be a useful tool and also harmful when used incorrectly. She received a blue and champion ribbon for her speech.

Jakob Beckley rounded out the speech competition with his speech entitled "Parades, Prom, and Public Service." Jakob spoke about his work at an early age in volunteering his time to his community. Because of his interest in local and state government he plans to become engaged in politics in the future and encourages other teens to become informed about governmental affairs to help mold the country in the direction that is most beneficial to all. Jakob received a blue and champion ribbon.

In the demonstration portion of the evening, Grace Adams shared with the audience "How to Draw a Horse." Grace is quite the artist and she took everyone through the steps to successfully create their own masterpiece. Grace received a blue and champion.

Ethan Dockter gave a demonstration on "Shop Safety." He talked about how to watch for issues with electricity, power tools, and safety equipment that should be worn when working with wood. He received a blue and champion ribbon.

Kendyll and Kellyn Smith gave a team demonstration on "Ballet." The twins gave an informative talk about each of the basic steps as well as advanced footwork that is required to put together a ballet performance. The girls received a blue and champion ribbon.

Katherine Buckler gave a demonstration using software presentation on how to make DIY crafts. Katherine walked the audience through the steps of how to make several projects. Those present went home with several great ideas. Katherine received a blue and champion.

For the variety show there were two acts.

First in the vocal category, Grace Adams sang "Do You Want to Build a Snowman." She did an awesome job and received a blue and champion. Next Kendyll and Kellyn Smith did a dance in the physical skills category to "Great Balls of Fire." They, too, received a blue and champion.

I want to thank Kim Lineman and Ella Robinson for serving as the judges for the evening.

All of the participants are now eligible to compete in the district event that will be held in May.

Tips to speed up the ripening process in your fruit

For most people, the upcoming months signal the arrival of fresh, seasonal produce, which promises eating at its finest. However, sometimes that produce isn't as ripe as you need it to be.

Some produce that has traveled a great distance is picked while it is still green and will not be ripe when it reaches the store. For some fruits, you can speed up the ripening process at home.

Common fruits that can be ripened at home include bananas, cantaloupe, peaches, pears, pineapples and tomatoes.

You can speed up their ripening by placing them in a single layer in a large paper bag with holes punched through it. Fold the opening of the bag over and leave it on the counter while the fruit ripens.

The fruit releases a gas that is then trapped in the bag, which speeds up the ripening process. Check the food daily to see whether it's ready to eat. Most fruit will ripen in a bag within a day or two.

Some produce, including apples, blueberries, cherries, grapes, strawberries and blackberries, will not ripen any more after they have been picked. Refrigerate these fruits immediately after purchase to maintain the best quality.

One of the best ways to get the freshest produce possible is to shop at your local farmers market for locally grown varieties. Since the food travels a shorter distance to reach local consumers, farmers can pick their produce at its peak of ripeness, either the night before or on the day of the market.

The Henry County Farmers Market will be opening the end of April and will run through October. As most of you probably know our market meets on the front courthouse lawn in New Castle on Saturday and Wednesday mornings. Some of the Farmers at our market are set up to accept WIC and Senior Farmers Market coupons as we have been for over 10 years.

This year we have three farmers who have also been qualified to accept SNAP or Food Stamp vouchers.

Upcoming event

April 23: AARP Smart Driver Course 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Extension Office. Learn defensive driving techniques; proven safety strategies, new traffic laws and rules of the road.

Plus, there are no tests to pass. You simply sign up and learn. Upon completion you could receive a multi-year discount on your car insurance (check with your agent to learn how much).

You must pre-register as space is limited. Cost is $15 for AARP members and $20 for non-members. Send your check made out to AARP to us at the Extension Office (P.O. Box 246, New Castle).

You must bring your AARP card that day if you are a member. We will also provide a light pizza lunch for participants.

This class is taught by AARP volunteers Glenn and Teresa Woods of Pleasureville and they do an excellent job.

Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

HCHS HOSTS OPERATION PREPARATION

CHRIS BROOKE/LOCAL

The goal of Operation Preparation, held April 2 at Henry County High School, involved inviting members of the community in to help students prepare for college and career. Organizers Cheryl Gilley and Niki Whitaker invited 43 speakers representing various careers from accountant to veterinarian to have a discussion with both the high and middle school students. Topics included what classes in high school were beneficial for the speakers' careers; their job shadowing experiences, involvement in high school clubs and volunteering opportunities; how long college or vocational training took for their career; where they went to college; additional state board exams and certification tests they had to take; and specifics about their careers, such as typical work day and work week, pay, local opportunities in their field and opportunities for advancement. Students listen with deep attention to the information shared by graphic design and video game professional Ashley Powell, above left. Electrician Tim Davis brought some equipment to give the students an idea what they would be working with if they pursued that career.

JR. HISTORIANS COMPETE

SUBMITTED

On March 28, 17 students from the Henry County Middle School's chapter of Kentucky Jr. Historical Society competed in the regional competition at the University of Louisville, according to information submitted by educators. Many KJHS groups participate in National History Day in Kentucky (NHDKy). This multifaceted, year-long academic program is the Kentucky affiliate program of National History Day. It challenges students to think like historians as they conduct original research using primary and secondary sources to critically investigate a topic, collaborate with fellow students, teachers and professionals, and communicate their findings to a variety of audiences. Students can present their findings as a paper, exhibit, documentary, website or performance individually and, in some categories, in a group. NHDKy is open to any Kentucky student in fourth through 12th grades. Top sixth through 12th grade students in each contest category at the state level of competition are eligible to advance to the NHD national contest that takes place annually at the University of Maryland. Four students, Jenna Hardin, Emma LaRoche, Asher Mancuso and Adam Porter, advanced to the state competition at the University of Kentucky on April 24 and 25. Participants pictured include: front, from left - Blake Cole and Carson Mings; second row - Tonya Puckett, Seth O'Nan, Griffyn Spencer, Taylor Whitaker, Jenna Hardin, Emma LaRoche and Adam Porter; back row - Kaleb Reeves, Baily Justice, Jerika Randall, Allison Nitschke and Trent Morrison.

Learning to ask for less from God and to listen more

When I was a boy, I prayed to receive a horse. I didn't get it. It was not the only thing for which I prayed that I did not get. I also prayed for my eyes to be healed so that I wouldn't have to wear eyeglasses. More than half a century later, I still lack a horse, and I still wear glasses—now with trifocal lenses. While I would have liked not to need eyeglasses, I am thankful for them and the vision they make possible. For several reasons, I am glad I didn't get the horse. Sitting on top of an animal larger and more powerful than I is not my adult idea of a fun experience.

MICHAEL Duncan
Pastor, Eminence Baptist Church

I learned something important from praying for and not receiving the horse or the corrected eyesight.

Contrary to what my preacher said and what my Bible literally said, asking for something in Jesus' name is not guarantee one will get it.

I believed I would get the horse and the perfect eyes.

I believed God would change my parents' attitude about horses.

As for the eyesight, I believed so strongly that I acted on faith as soon as I prayed—I put away my eyeglasses.

In spite of failed prayer experience, I've kept on praying.

Other prayers have not been answered, though many have been; and many good things have come my way for which I never prayed.

Like Jesus, I've prayed in hard times, sometimes pleading for the cup to be taken from me.

Sometimes, it has; at other times, I've drunk the cup's contents.

On Palm Sunday, Jesus' triumphal march into Jerusalem and the spectacle of others' plotting to kill Him, caused me to think about the tough spots in which we find ourselves and to wonder again just where in those do we find God.

As I've grown older, I think I am praying more like Jesus did when he faced the tough times of his life.

Like him, I still dare to pray for deliverance; but I also pray for stamina that I may endure through the tough times . . . endure all the way to the End.

I'm better at enduring than I used to be.

For one thing, I've learned that life, even at its best, is tough.

For another, I've learned and am learning how to have the ear of a disciple — how to listen to the God in whom I trust. (See Isaiah 50:4-11.)

I'm learning to ask less from God and to listen for more.

I've learned and am learning that the secret to surviving tough times is not deliverance from them, but deliverance in the midst of them.

I've learned and am learning that, while God sometimes does seem to deliver me from tough times, more often than not my salvation comes as I discover God present in the tough times.

Like Isaiah, I can declare with faith and confidence, "He who vindicates Me is near. . . ." I am not in charge of the when or how of that vindication, and that is okay with me.

I need only to know the One who is my Vindicator.

In good times and bad, I know the One who is our Vindicator.

He who overcame death meets us in our living.

ABSOLUTE AUCTION
2509 Elmburg Rd. Hwy. 395 Shelby Co., KY 124.42+/- AC Shelby Co Farm that will be offered in 2 Tracts and as a whole
Saturday, April 18, 2015, at 10 a.m.
Auction will be held on Tract #1 on Lewis Lane
DIRECTIONS: At the intersection of U.S. 60 and Hwy. 395 at Peytona, turn North on 395. Go 3 miles to Bussey Road. Watch for sign on Tract # 2. Go on North past Bussey Road, and watch for Buffalo Lick Church. Entrance to Tract # 1 is across the road on Lewis Lane, watch for Tract #1 Sign. From this farm you have good access to Shelbyville, Louisville, Frankfort, Lexington and surrounding counties. I-64 is minutes from this farm.
PRE-AUCTION VIEWING: Sunday, April 12, 2-4 p.m.
Here is a great opportunity to buy farm land that is well located with two road access.
This farm has been in the Lewis family for years. The farm contains 124.42 acres of gently rolling crop or pasture land for a cattle operation. Farm has been surveyed to be offered in 2 tracts and then regrouped to offer as a whole.
Tract #1 has 39 +/- ac. Has a Trailer that could possibly be up dated and used for living quarters, a metal storage building, tobacco barn and other out buildings. You enter Tract #1 using Lewis Lane. This tract would make an excellent week end get away from the hustle and bustle of city living or having you own hunting grounds.
Tract #2 contains 85 +/- ac. This tract is gently rolling crop or pasture land. You can enter this tract from Bussey Lane. No improvements on this tract.
When both tracts have been offered the final bid of each tract and will be announced, then the farm will be offered as a whole. The total amount of the tracts will have to be raised $5,000.00 dollars to put the farm back as a whole.
TERMS: Purchaser(s) will be required to deposit 10% of the purchase price the day of the auction and the balance is due and payable with the deed on or before May 18, 2015. 2015 property taxes will pass to the purchaser(s). A 7% Buyers Premium will be added to the final bid and this will determine the purchase price of the property.

WE KNOW YOU DON'T WANT TO, BUT SCHEDULE YOUR COLONOSCOPY.

Colon Cancer is the 2nd leading cause of cancer death in the U.S. It's also 90% preventable.

If you're 50 or older, or have a family history of colon cancer, the most effective way to reduce your risk is to schedule a colon cancer screening. Call 855.34.KYONE (59663) to schedule a painless screening colonoscopy or talk to your primary care physician about fecal DNA or FIT testing. There is no reason not to be screened for colon cancer. Just do it.

WILDCATS

struggled with the high winds on Henry County's field and mis-played several fly balls that led to runs for the Wildcats. Add to that 17 Henry County hits and five walks and the Wildcats cruised to the five-inning win.

Murray and Riggins had three hits each and Riggins led the team with five RBIs on two doubles and a single. Berry, Edens, Isaac Kent and Brandon Handley all had two hits each.

Cole Lawson and Andrew Coomes had the Warriors' only hits. Jared Golden and Braeden Hinkley drove in a run each for the Warriors.

Connor Smith pitched three strong innings for the Wildcats, striking out two and walking one batter.

Lawson started for the Warriors and was the victim of those misplayed fly balls. He struck out one and walked three.

Coomes relieved for two innings and struck out two and walked two.

EHS coach Liam Corley was philosophical in defeat.

"Defensive issues and physical errors come and go, that's the beauty of baseball," Corley said.

"It's the only major team sport whose frontline of game stats still calculate defensive errors. We have to grow as a team and not commit mental errors, not take plays off and not get down on ourselves. Knowing that the sun is probably going to shield your ability to make easy plays, you have to make adjustments. We need to be mentally tough and know how to stop the bleeding."

Corley was pleased with his pitchers and the team's supporters.

"Our pitchers, Lawson and Coomes, threw strikes," he said. "We have to make plays behind them. But our biggest standout of the game was our fan section. They stayed positive and didn't get down on our boys. That's huge towards mental strength and maturity as a team."

Corley is looking forward to the rematch with the Wildcats.

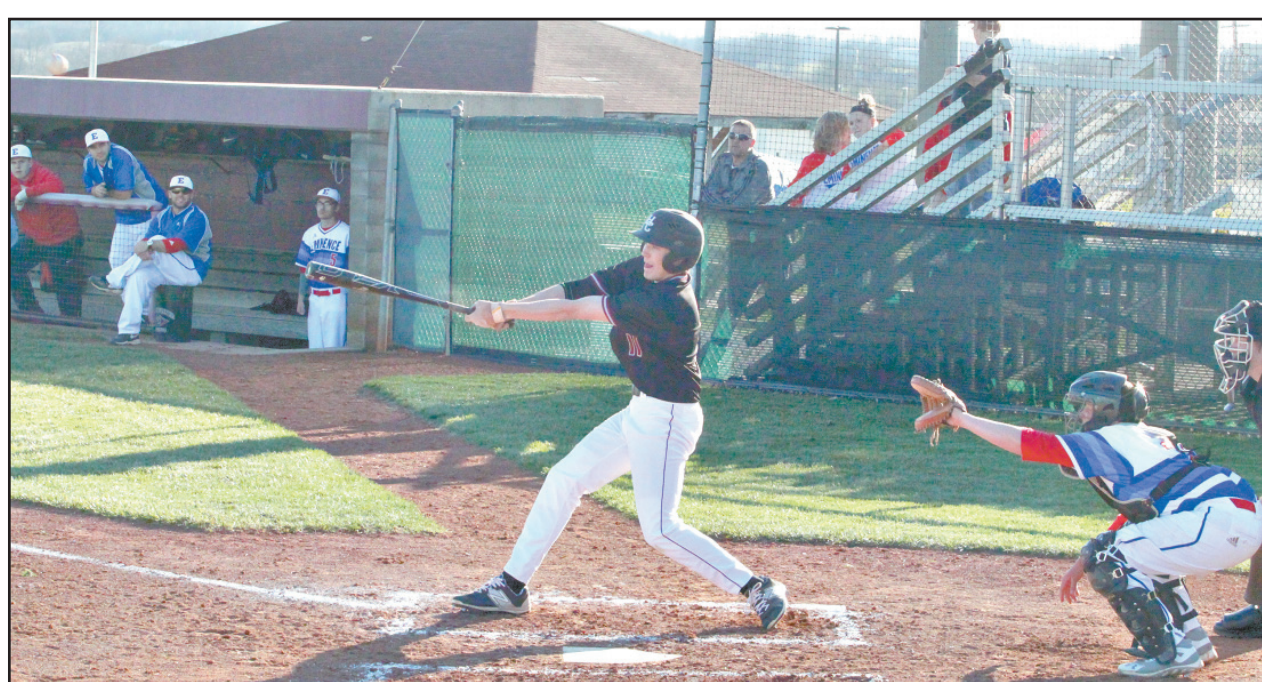

"We'll see them again later in the year," he said. "We have to get over who we are playing and be able to play the game the way we know how."

Dill was pleased with his team's mindset coming into the rivalry game.

"We came out ready to play," Dill said. "Connor Smith set the tone by throwing strikes. Connor was good on the mound not giving up a hit in three innings. Offensively we came out swinging and good approaches at the plate."

Dill praised his younger players and his lone senior Isaac Kent.

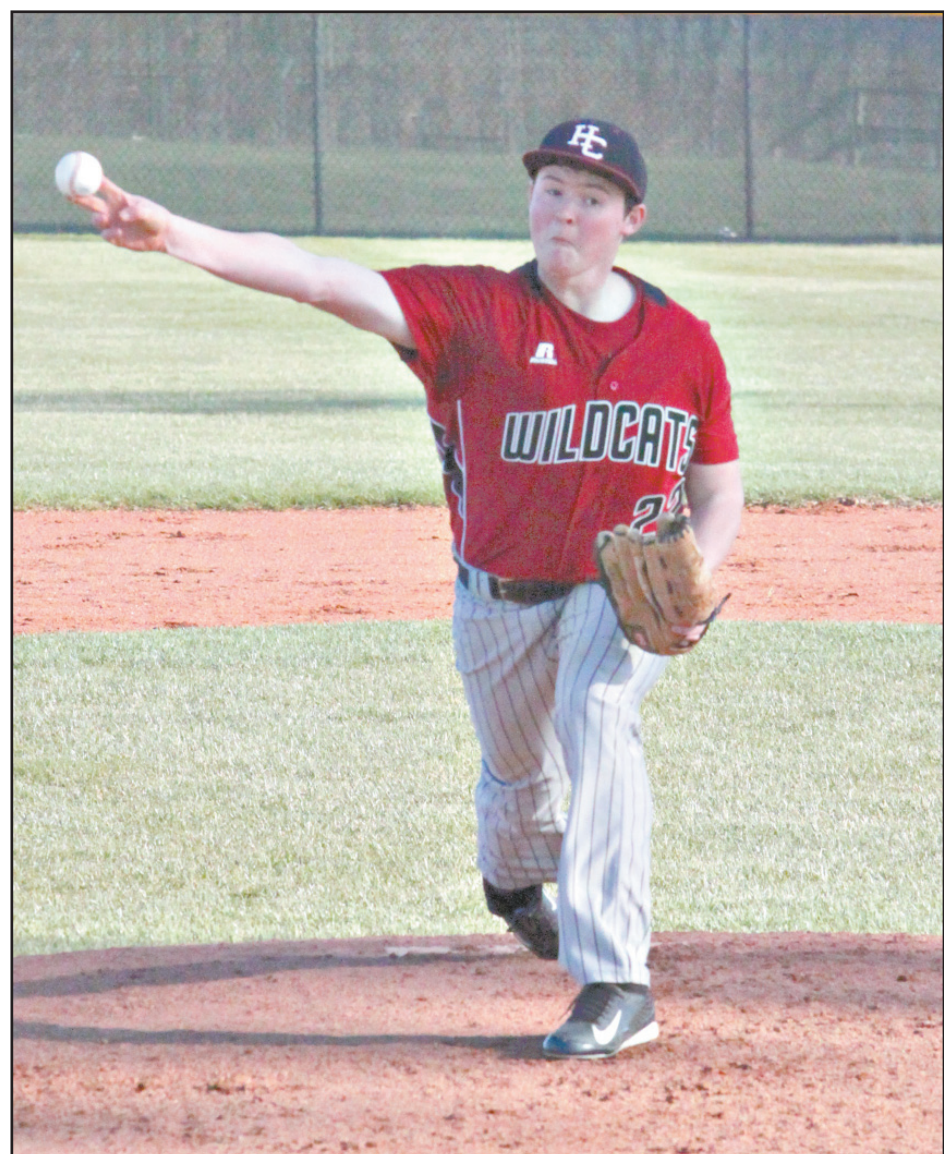

"We hit well as a team so it is hard to pick out just one or two but Jaydon Berry, Nick Riggins, Justin Edens, Brandon Handley, Daniel Murray and Isaac Kent all had multiple hits to lead the offense. We did what we needed to do to move to 2-0 in district play."

GREG WOODS/LOCAL

Two track Cats compete at Central

SUBMITTED

Henry County High School track athletes Patrick Cravens and Cameron Johnson competed in the Lenny Lyles

Invitational Track Meet at Central High School March 31 and came away with impressive results against some of the top teams in the area.

Cravens finished third in the discus with a throw of 112 feet, 2 inches and fifth in the shot put with a distance of 39 feet, 2 inches. Cravens was second among all Class 2A competitors in the shot put and first among all 2A competitors in the discus.

Johnson finished eighth in the long jump with a leap of 18 feet, 3 inches and second in the triple jump with a distance of 40 feet, 7 inches. Johnson was third among 2A competitors in the long jump and second among 2A competitors in the triple jump.

the Warriors' only other hit of the game. Valley had 10 hits in the game, while the Warriors committed six errors.

Trevor Payton started the game and struck out two and walked three. Cameron Mathis relieved and struck four and walked two.

The Warriors hosted Carroll County April 1 and fell to their district rivals a day after getting hammered by county rival Henry County. But Carroll saw great improvement from the day before as Eminence cleaned up their defense considerably against the Panthers.

"At the end of the Henry County game we talked about letting go," Corley said. "There is no sense dwelling in the past. We as a team realize that we just didn't get it done. I told them to find something else to focus on. I'm as superstitious as they come and the baseball gods just didn't see us playing to our ability the night before. I told the boys a story about what I used to do when I was in a slump. They jumped on the bandwagon and found a way to clear their minds. They had their mind on this pitch. If you make a mistake, forget it and focus on the next pitch."

When asked who stood out for the Warriors Corley said, "Mitchell Metten really stood out behind the plate as a leader. He still needs to improve arm strength and agility but he controlled our pitchers well and had great at-bats, taking their pitchers deep in the count and finding ways to get on three times."

Trevor Payton-five strikeouts vs. Carroll County.

He was also pleased with the pitching performances of Mathis and Payton.

"Trevor Payton threw five and a third beautiful innings with just two walks and five strikeouts," Corley said. "Cameron Mathis had a great hit late in the game and has been strong out of the bullpen for us."

But offense still troubles the coach.

"Striking out 12 times doesn't translate to a win," Corley said. "We have to be more aggressive at the plate. No one in this district is getting drafted this year. We have to put the ball in play and force the other team to make errors. Hats off to Carroll's starter. The kid had his off speed pitches working and hit his zones. Even though the score didn't reflect how we played and how much we grew, we're obviously not there yet. But we can't lose the light at the end of the tunnel. We can't become complacent with just knowing we played better than the score indicates."

Lady Cats go to 4-0 in district play

BY GREG WOODS

The Henry County Lady Cats started last week with a tough loss to Western Hills before defeating two district opponents. They then travelled to Florida where they split games with two highly regarded teams in the Florida Beach Bash on Sunday.

Western Hills 2 HCHS 1

The Lady Cats hosted Western Hills March 30 and played one of their best games of the season against a quality opponent in the Lady Wolverines.

Western Hills threatened in the first, getting two on base with one out, but the Lady Cats got out of the inning unscathed. Pitcher Aly Stanley induced a pop up to shortstop Savannah Mertz and then got the final out of the inning on a pop up to second baseman Olivia Whaley.

Stanley led off the bottom half of the inning with a single but the Lady Cats could not come up with another hit.

The Lady Cats threatened in the second when Mertz singled to start the inning. After Haley Miles flew out to centerfield, Madison Rabourn singled to give the Lady Cats runners on first and second with one out. But Western Hills was able to get out of the inning without further damage.

Western Hills finally broke the deadlock in the fourth inning when the first batter hit a triple to right field. The runner scored on the next at bat on a sacrifice fly to centerfield.

Henry County came back to tie it up in the bottom of the inning. Shelby Ray led off with a single to right field, Mertz followed with an infield hit. After Miles flew out, Rabourn singled to load the bases.

Molly Williamson followed with an RBI infield hit to first base. The Lady Cats had the bases loaded with one out and looked to have a big inning but Western Hills was able to get out of the inning on two groundball outs.

Western Hills got the final run of the game in the fifth inning. They got a one-out double to centerfield then a two-out single to centerfield to score the runner from second base.

The Lady Cats threatened in the bottom of the inning when Whaley got an infield hit with one out. Ray then hit a hard ground ball up the middle. The Western Hills second baseman made a nice diving grab on the ball and flipped the ball with her glove hand to the shortstop covering second base to force Whaley out. A strikeout ended the Lady Cats' chance to tie the game.

Western Hills got a couple of runners on in the sixth but the lady Cats got of the jam.

Both teams went down in order in the final inning and a half to give Western Hills a hard-fought victory.

Lady Cat coach Jon Kasten was pleased with his team's effort after a disappointing performance against Oldham County.

"After the Oldham loss on Wednesday, I told the players that I wasn't worried about results," Kasten said. "I wanted to see us get better fundamentally this week. I thought that we did play a good game defensively. We made a lot of good plays and looked much better.

"Offensively, we made contact and had eight hits, but we weren't able to square up and drive a ball or string enough

Wildcats pummel Central, Eminence

BY GREG WOODS

The Henry County Wildcat baseball team managed to get two wins last week before the rains came and wiped out the rest of their scheduled games for the week.

On March 30 the Wildcats defeated Central 17-7 and the following day they defeated county rival Eminence 24-3.

HCHS 17 Central 7

The Wildcats fell behind 4-0 in the top of the second inning but rebounded with five runs in their half of the inning to take the lead.

Central responded with three more runs in the third inning but Henry County again came back well with two runs to tie the score 7-7.

Henry County broke the game open by scoring eight runs in the bottom of the fourth and then cruised to a five-inning victory.

The Cats benefited from several walks by Central pitchers and took advantage with big base hits with men on base. Nick Riggins drew three walks and Jaden Berry and Justin Edens drew two walks. The team drew a total of 12. Isaac Kent and Bodie Clark had three RBIs each. Edens and Adam Kent scored three times each.

"I thought we had a good approach at the plate," Coach Stuart Dill said. "We were patient to get our pitch and it led to 11 hits and several extra base hits. We were also able to draw several walks which helped lead to us putting up our highest run total of the season.

"Adam and Isaac Kent and Bodie Clark all had two hits apiece but overall, we were good offensively which helped us win the game," Dill continued. "Daniel Murray was able to come in for two innings of relief and shut them down to pick up the win."

Murray struck out four and walked none in two innings.

Dill was pleased with how his team responded to trouble in the early innings of the game.

"I think the big inning we had offensively in the second after they scored four runs was the turning point in the game," he said. "It showed our guys we can score and gave them a lot of confidence at the plate."

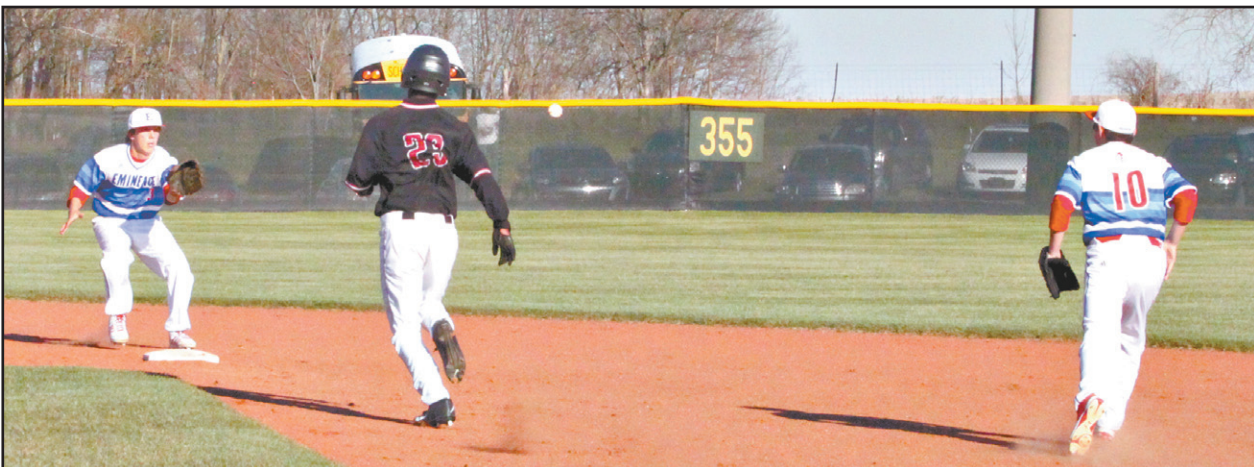

Dill was not pleased with the way the team started the game.

"We have to do a better job defensively," he said. "We cannot continue to give up free bases if we want to continue to improve and get to where we want to be at the end of the season. It was nice to get Blake Prather back in the field defensively and see him make a play as he works his way back from injury. His return will be a big boost to our team."

EHS softball falls to Carroll

BY GREG WOODS

The Eminence Warriors softball team traveled to Carrollton March 31 to take on the Carroll County Lady Panthers and came away with a 9-2 loss.

The Lady Panthers scored two runs in the first and one run in the second and third innings to jump on top 4-0. They added two more in the fourth inning and looked like they would pull away from the Warriors, but Eminence came back to get two runs in the fifth to make it 6-2.

Serena Dockter and Lyndsay Craigmyle scored the Warriors runs and Rylee Mitchell got on via a walk to keep the inning going before the Lady Panthers were able to shut down the Warriors' rally.

Carroll added one more in the fifth and two in the sixth to finish out the seven-run win.

Dockter had two hits in the game. Madison Dockter and Craigmyle and Daphna Dale also had hits for the Warriors. Serena Dockter went the whole way on the mound for the Warriors giving up nine hits and eight walks while striking out four.

"We hit poorly but we were in the game until we broke down defensively late in the game," Coach Jerry Martin said. "We played well early and then errors got to us late."

Martin was pleased with the play of his pitcher.

"Serena goes over the top defensively," he said. "She gets anything near her. I'm really proud of her effort and leadership. She has really taken ownership of this team."

He also was pleased with the defense of a couple of his infielders.

Rylee Mitchell is only a sixth-grader and she did a good job at first base," he said. "Lyndsay Craigmyle did a good job at second base."

Martin continues to see signs of progress for his inexperienced team.

"We are getting better," Martin said. "When we have practice, we make every play. In games we get intimidated but I definitely see strides being made."

EHS falls to Valley, Carroll

BY GREG WOODS
sports@hclocal.com

The Eminence Warriors traveled to Louisville March 30 and took on the Valley Vikings in their third game of the season.

The Warriors fell 8-1 but showed marked improvements in the game.

The Warriors scored first in the top of the first inning when Mitchell Metten singled, stole second and third base and then came home on a Cole Lawson hit.

Valley got three runs in the bottom of the inning to take the lead.

After a scoreless second inning for both teams, Valley added a single run in the third and fourth innings.

Valley added three more in the fifth inning to set the final margin at seven runs.

Coach Liam Corley saw better play from his young team.

"Gosh, we're playing the game the way it is supposed to be played," he said. "The boys are picking each other up and there is constant communication, great flow of backups and moving to the appropriate base. Our approach at the plate was better and we hit the ball solid, just right at people. The Valley third baseman had the hot glove of the day. He made several big plays to rob us."

Corley thinks his freshman first baseman is about to break out.

"Trey Gregory is real close to having a hot bat," he said. "He's hitting the ball hard, just right at people."

He was also pleased to have Mitchell Metten back in the lineup.

Metten worked hard behind the plate on his first day back and our two pitchers did what they could to keep us in the game."

Corley believes a win is imminent for his team. "We're real close to getting that first win," he said. "Having fun and learning the fundamentals will translate soon. Putting the bat on the ball won last night's game for Valley. The positivity around the program is growing among the boys and I hope that translates to the community as well."
